Friday, July 8 and
Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, July 11, 13, & 15
9:00 am – 12:30 pm
Kelley School of Business, Rm. CG0034 & CG0036

Do you have plans to develop or revise a course over the summer? If so, you may wish to consider this year’s Course Development Institute, which will begin the morning of Friday, July 8, and continue on through Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings the following week (July 11, 13, and 15). The Institute is free of charge and open to all instructors at IU-Bloomington.

By way of highly interactive processes and activities, Institute facilitators Eric Metzler, Lisa Kurz, and George Rehrey will guide you through the beginning phases of developing a new course or transforming an existing course. For those interested in adding service-learning to their course, Nicole Schonemann and Andrew Libby from the Service-Learning Program will host sessions on how to integrate a service-learning component into their course. You will receive invaluable feedback from colleagues from other departments and disciplines on the work you do during the Institute.

Those who enroll will be asked to choose one course to develop or revise. By the end of the Institute, you can expect to have determined learning outcomes for your students and outlined a major final assignment (or exam) that gathers evidence about the extent to which students have achieved those outcomes. You will also have the opportunity to lay out a basic calendar for the course you are developing and to map out and align assignments and grading strategies that motivate students toward the learning outcomes you have delineated.

If you would like to join us for the Institute this summer, please indicate your interest by submitting an application no later than 5 p.m. on Monday, April 25. The application form can be reached by clicking on the following link: http://tinyurl.com/CDI2011Application. Participants will be notified of their status (i.e. active or wait-list) on Tuesday, May 3.

Questions about the Institute may be posed in reply to this message or sent to the facilitators, Eric Metzler (emetzler@indiana.edu), Lisa Kurz (kurz@indiana.edu), George Rehrey (grehrey@indiana.edu), Nicole Schonemann (nschonem@indiana.edu), or Andrew Libby (alibby@indiana.edu).

Brought to you by The Center for Innovative Teaching and Learning and Instructional Consulting at the Kelley School of Business